EDITORIAL POLICY

Welcome to this edition of "Warrior" magazine. This publication exists as an independent voice of Loyalism in the North of Ulster. We welcome articles and letters from our readership, although these may not reflect the views of the editorial staff and we cannot always guarantee publication. Thank you for purchasing this magazine, we can assure you that all money raised from sales will be used for the furtherance of the Loyalist cause.

DRUMCREE "THE LAST STEP"

The events at Drumcree in July have rightly been recognised as one of, if not the, most important demonstrations of Protestant unity and determination to exercise their cultural and religious liberties in contemporary Protestant history.

The banning of Drumcree Church parade was the final straw in a long, long, list of attempts by the Pan-Nationalist Front, aided and abetted by Westminster to dilute and bastardise our Protestant heritage into what has been vomited continuously upon us as something called, sic, "Northern Irish." As such, the banning of a church parade was an attempt to provoke the Protestant community and then use overwhelming force to "face down" that community.

The "backlash" by the Protestant community under the guidance of the Orange Order was the result of this attempt at "facing down" Protestantism, and was important in that it demonstrated to Dublin, London, and Washington, that enough was enough; Protestants had already given too much in the name of appeasement!

The role and importance of the Orange Order, (and the staff of this magazine have never been strong Orange supporters), cannot be underestimated or overstated. Their ability to control and mobilise large numbers of angry men, their intelligent use of the media, must be applauded as magnificent!

LONDONDERRY
COLERAINE BALLYMONEY

Although a few pockets of Orange members did little, notably Ballymoney, Ballycastle and Rasharkin Districts, the Orange Order and their supporters, i.e. the Protestant community, answered the "Cry of Drumcree" with great determination and discipline; notwithstanding a minor hooligan element mostly in and around Belfast. The Orange Order has in effect, because of its peaceful actions during the Drumcree period re-gained much of its glorious past in standing firm in defence of Protestant liberties, when for many years people despaired of its, or rather lack of actions.

The Orange Order has demonstrated that it can be the organising body of grass roots Protestantism and in this respect it deserves our fullest support and preparation for the next PNF sponsored confrontation!

The stand at Drumcree ultimately though was a timely reminder to all our enemies that regardless of the consequences, if the cause is worth fighting for, then it will be fought for with all our strength, ability, and determination.

Drumcree was a catalyst - no more concessions - no more appeasement!!

DRUMCREE REPORTS

ULSTER SAYS ENOUGH IS ENOUGH

Protests in Londonderry following the RUC decision to ban the Orange Order from walking the Garvaghy Road followed much the same pattern as in other areas of the Province. Trouble, however was less evident on the ground as protest organisers kept a tight reign on things. During the stand off at Drumcree, blockades of both the Craigavon and Foyle bridges passed off peacefully. Protests were also held in the outlying villages and rural housing estates. Several hundred protesters held vigils at Newbuildings, Tullyally, Drumahoe, Nelson Drive, Lincon Courts and Irish Street.

Trouble erupted in a number of areas as the RUC arrived in full paramilitary riot gear and proceeded to remove peaceful protesters with force. The force used however was not the minimum required by law but the maximum that they could get away with. On successive nights crowds of women and children had landrovers race at them at high speeds in an attempt to remove them. Plastic bullets were fired into a crowd of women and children in Tullyally without warning. Local youths responded in a predictable fashion by throwing stones and bottles against what they perceived as an unprovoked attack on their community. Residents reported that they were told to get off the streets or they would be shot.

Reports that Army personnel in RUC uniform carried out the attacks abound as many residents stated that those firing the baton rounds had no identification numbers and ill-fitting uniforms. It is true that many spoke with English accents and arrived in Army personnel carriers.

Burning barricades were erected across the Ardmore road and at the Duncastle road in Newbuildings a disused building was set on fire. Two cars and a digger were burnt and used as a barricade at Tullyally. These were set on fire but no petrol bombs were thrown at police lines. Less than twenty yards away on the same stretch of road, Republicans accompanied RUC personnel in laying siege to the Protestant housing estate of Tullyally, Sandwiched between Republican and Police lines, residents were taunted with IRA slogans and some waving of the Irish tricolour. Many of those on the Republican lines were known as local drug barons from the area and yet they engaged in open good humoured banter with the RUC.

By Wednesday no-one could have predicted how much the atmosphere was about to change as the decision to ban the parade from the Garvaghy Road was lifted. Rioters took to the streets with military precision in Republican areas. In Londonderry 1000 petrol bombs were hurled every hour at the police lines. American Journalists spoke of known IRA activists directing operations as line upon line of Republican youths launched a never ending stream of petrol bombs at commercial property and police lines. The main sorting office for the Royal Mail was fire bombed and Nationalist youth who engaged in the rioting queued the next day at their local Social Security offices demanding their Giros. Having been duly obliged they again took to the streets armed with Dutch courage and the obligatory petrol bomb.

These same youths were to repeat their performances for the foreign news crews in the aftermath of the Apprentice Boys parade on August 10th as they threw petrol bombs once more at the RUC and damaged the Diamond War Memorial in the City Centre, the target of the proposed Bogside residents rally on the eve of the Apprentice Boys Relief Celebrations. The rally was diverted of course but this was not to upset Republican plans to destroy the War Memorial as later actions prove

The leadership of the Apprentice Boys are to be commended for their wise stewardship which allowed their walk through the city to pass of peacefully despite massive Republican provocation, whose sole intent was to allow the IRA to reactivate its campaign within Northern Ireland. Unionist Leaders would do well to remember this fact when they next decide to use the Protestant community as cannon fodder to satisfy their own lust for power. Marching people up to the top of the hill only to let them down again is one lesson they dare not repeat.

Riots erupt in Tullyally

PARTS of the city were brought to a standstill last Monday, as protestors blocked roads at Newbuildings, Nelson Drive, Drumahoe and Tullyally.

Also, officers and members of the City of Londonderry Grand Orange Lodge handed a letter of protest into Strand Road police headquarters.

In the main, the protests, carried out in support of the Orangemen at Drumcree, passed off peacefully.

However, there was rioting at Tullyally, where a car and a builders' lifting vehicle were set on fire.

A RUC spokesperson said a small number of plastic baton rounds were fired after police came under attack by youths, who were manning a burning barricade, began throwing petrol bombs.

There were no reports of arrests or injuries.

Local UDP representative, David

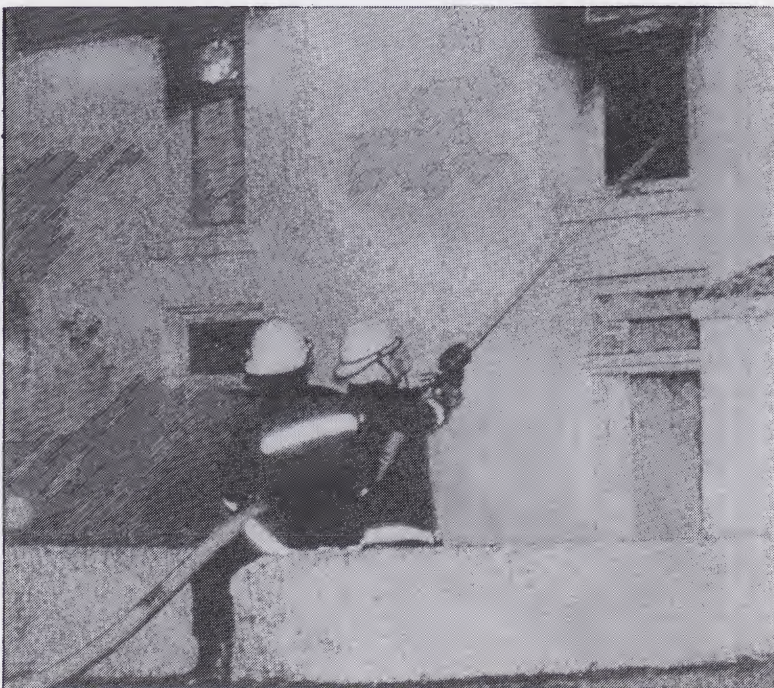

Nicholl, claimed that the police were responsible for the riot.

He said: "There were no problems when the local police were on the scene. But the DMSU (District Mobile Support Unit) arrived and adopted a heavy-handed approach.

"They told people to clear the street or they would be shot. The police fired a baton round before a stone was fired, and they clubbed a man out looking for his son.

"Stones were only thrown at them after that. The local police had kept a distance all through the protest, and it was only when the DMSU came on the scene that there was any disturbance.

"The damage done to the car and builders' lifting truck, which admittedly happened earlier, was regrettable, but, in context of what is taking place throughout the rest of the province, was minimal."

DRUMCREE REPORTS

In the town of Coleraine there was a show of support for the Orangemen at Drumcree. During the stand off the two bridges over the River Bann were blocked by Orangemen and other Loyalists, as also were the Agivey and Kilrea bridges, effectively cutting off all traffic between Counties Antrim and Londonderry north of Toomebridge.

Whilst most of the protests in and around the Coleraine area were peaceful, there were sporadic incidents at the station in Railway Road where some premises were damaged by fire and several reports of looting by hooligans unconnected with the protests.

Some Loyalist activists were critical of the involvement, or rather the lack of involvement by some elements within the Orange leadership in the area. Reports said that there seemed to be a reluctance amongst a number of the Orange Hierarchy in getting involved in this kind of street protest. It would appear that many Orangemen in the "safe havens" of North Antrim and East Londonderry could take an example from their Portadown Brethren or those who for years have defended the frontier with the Irish Republic.

DRUMCREE REPORTS

Protests in support of Drumcree in Ballymoney town were on the whole a low key affair with leadership from the local Orange leaders being sadly lacking. The largest turnout of the week was on the Tuesday night when members of the District Lodge marched to the Portrush Road roundabout and blocked traffic for a short time. It is also understood that members travelled to the International Airport on the Monday night and took part in a blockade there.

It would appear however that Orangemen were few on the ground at any of the protests in the town itself but this in no way detracts from the efforts of the Orange Brethren which did take part in these, with the large participation of a couple of the local Lodges coming in for special attention, whom we shall not mention by name here as we are sure that Warrior were not the only agencies taking note.

Special mention however must be made of the Loyalists of Dervock and Mosside who for the whole period of the Drumcree siege maintained a constant vigil at the barricades. Despite the efforts of the RUC who several times cleared the blockades away, for the most part these villages remained closed off to the outside world.

Unique to the Ballymoney area though must have been a group of Scottish and English Orangemen who had travelled all the way from Swindon and Bristol in the South West of England to show solidarity with the Protesters at Drumcree. Members of the Somme Memorial LOL 842 Bristol made their way to Ballymoney on the Wednesday in order to take part in the protests. The Brethren then remained in Ulster for the Twelfth of July celebrations in Ballycastle, were they accompanied LOL 956 from Ballymoney. Adding to the cosmopolitan flavour of the day was the fact that both Lodges led by the Prince of Orange Flute Band from Coatbridge in Scotland.

A spokesman for the Bristol Lodge said that they had enjoyed a marvellous time in Ballymoney and stated that whilst many of their members were of Scottish or Ulster descent, they also had members on parade who were English men born and bred, a fact borne out by one member who carried the St. George's Standard at the front of the Lodge. The members of the Lodge were unanimous in stating their support for the Orangemen of Portadown and their right to parade and said that there was great opposition to the Order were they came from especially in the Swindon area where there was a high concentration of ethnic Irish who continued to spew their anti-British, pro Republican hatred at every opportunity. Warrior would like to say a special word of thanks to the members of the Somme Memorial and all other Loyalists from the Mainland who stood shoulder to shoulder with Ulster during the recent days.

RELICS, ROMANISM, AND THE HOLY MOUSE

One of the princes of Germany said of Martin Luther, "He has made the way to Heaven much shorter by sacking all the door-keepers!" The Church of Rome has so many "Door-keepers" for it has made the Virgin Mary, angels and "saints" other mediators, encouraging its people to pray to them and honour their relics although the scriptures condemn such practises.

Froude in his "Annals Of An English Abbey" said, "Money, how to get it, and who had a right to share it - became the question of deepest moment and chiefest subject of discussion from the conclave in Rome to the shaving - houses in abbey and priory." Rome has a "saint" for almost every country, situation and circumstance. St. Antony of Padua is the "finder of lost articles:" St. Blaise is the patron saint of sufferers of throat diseases (The blessing of St. Blaise is by applying two candles to the throat) ; St. Jude, a very popular saint, is the patron saint of "hopeless cases": and there are hundreds more.

DISAPPEARING "SAINTS."

Some of Rome's "saints" have been taken off the calendar as not having existed - St. Philomena for instance, who had a great following among the credulous, or St. Barbara, the patron saint of those in danger of death by lightning or cannon-balls! Alexander Robertson in his book "The Roman Catholic Church in Italy" gives examples of the multiplication of relics of saints and others, scattered here and there in various places.

MANY BODIED "SAINTS".

"There arose in the church this extraordinary state of matters that some saints have many bodies, besides quantities of arms, legs, and fingers. St. Peter has three bodies. St. Andrew has five, besides the head of a sixth. But St. James the Greater has seven bodies, besides some extra heads. Mary Magdalene has four bodies; whilst her hair, preserved in hundreds of churches, if collected could meet the world's demand for wigs! St. Pancras who is said to have been a boy martyr of the 3rd century, has twelve bodies of all shapes and sizes, all attested as genuine by Papal bulls."

THE HOLY MOUSE.

"One need not wonder that Pagans and fictitious beings are adored as saints, when mules, mice, dogs, pigs, lambs and donkeys have been exalted into that blessed category-saints. At Lodeve, in Herault, France, a mouse ate the Holy water, when straightway the Priests pronounced it a saint, and the "Holy Mouse" was venerated in the city".

The more saints and saint's day, the more grist to the mill!

The process of making-"saints" continues in the Romans Catholic church. It was reported in an article in " The Times" that the present Pope John Paul 11, has canonised as many men and women as all his predecessors put together!

THE ULSTER ECONOMY - A POLICY OF DESTRUCTION

For two decades British Government policy has deliberately been directed at destroying a thriving and wealth generating economy, thereby making Ulster dependent upon Westminster subsistence and hence susceptible to political manipulation. A mixture of sheer incompetence, coupled with the deliberate policy of running down the Ulster economy so that it would eventually be reduced to an economy on par with the "Free State", has led to the economic and industrial base of Ulster being eroded from a strong, healthy and vibrant condition under Stormont, to it's weak position today. But Ulster should not swallow the poison, full of Westminster lies and deceit. Despite the destructive faces of a colonial Britain, aided by a hostile Dublin Government, Ulster has the infrastructure to become economically and socially viable as it was prior to the imposition of direct (misrule) by Westminster in 1972

Ulster has a first class rail and road network linked for import and export purposes to an international airport equal to any in Europe, and a port in Belfast which is one of the busiest in the UK. We have a skilled work force with an excellent industrial training programme, which coupled with good industrial relations and high productivity makes Ulster the envy of Europe. In education Ulster's universities have excellent research facilities with a close rapport between them and industry, with overall our education system producing more "high flyers" proportionally to the Mainland. Socially, we have one of the lowest crime rates in the western world and a health care system second to none. Low housing costs result in a high disposable income, making Ulster one of the most attractive areas in the UK for inward investment. With the heightened awareness of tourism as a business opportunity, and with tourism prospects providing a more favourable investment climate than for many years, Ulster has the potential to become a major tourist centre in the world.

With factors such as these there is no doubt that with hard work and individual personal commitment an Independent Ulster could survive and prosper economically.

DO UNTO THEM.....DUBLIN DUPLICITY

For many years the Protestant people of Ulster have become more and more aware of the absolute hatred and contempt the Irish Government have for the Protestant religion, culture and traditions. This belief was graphically confirmed and evident through the speeches and statements made during the "Siege of Drumcree" by Irish Government ministers and politicians.

Statements from John Bruton and Dick Spring especially, quite simply pure sectarian bile straight from their gut. The absolute and total hatred by the Irish political establishment for Ulster Protestant was amazingly clear for all to see. The Irish establishment forgot the first rule of deception by letting their sectarian hatred and rage emerge unchecked after the Orange Order church service parade was allowed to continue down the Garvaghy Road. In place of their usual perfidious and treacherous "mask" of sic, "tolerance" we saw their true face; a face of venomous vile Irish Roman Catholic Republicanism, and it's detestation of the Ulster Protestant People!

As such there is no doubt that the sectarian attacks carried out by Irish Republican mobs on Protestant homes, churches and business after 11th July, was the result of the nakedly, sectarian, and inflammatory speeches made by the various Irish politicians who appeared on the world media, most notably the BBC.

The sectarian attacks and ethnic cleansing of Protestants in North Belfast, South Down, Newtonbutler; Lisnaskea; Enniskillen, Omagh, Castlederg, Coalisland, Londonderry, the Fountain Estate - the list goes on and on - all lie firmly at the doorstep of Leinster House in Dublin.

Such "indirectly sanctioned" attacks on Ulster by the Dublin establishment though is not new. The Irish republic provides the Republican murder squads with the "blood and heart" they need to survive, in the form of safe training areas, storage and manufacturing of explosives bases. Yet during 27 years of violence, compared to Ulster or the UK, the Irish Republic, in terms of death and destruction has suffered minimally. In short, whilst perpetuating the violence in Ulster, the Irish Republic has suffered little but indirectly caused great pain and suffering in Ulster and the Mainland.

After the "unmasking" of the Irish establishment during "Drumcree", Bruton, Spring and the rest of their parasitic cohorts must be made well aware that they are fully answerable for their sectarian bigoted actions during the past months, and over the past 27 years, and the suffering and pain they help maintain. The entire role of the Dublin establishment in relation to Republican violence in Ulster must now be reappraised, and "physically" acted upon:- Exodus, Chapter 21, Verses 23 - 25!

25 And if any mischief follow, then thou shalt give life for life,

26 Eye for eye, tooth for tooth, hand for hand, foot for foot,

27 Burning for burning, wound for wound, stripe for stripe.

MAINLAND NEWS

PEACE PROCESS COCKNEY STYLE

In a previous report we mentioned the cowardly attack on some Scottish bandmen attending an Apprentice Boys parade through central London. one of the left wing pro-republican groups known to have taken part was the Anti-Nazi League. Stickers produced by this particular assortment of scum were appearing through the London area in the vain hope of getting the parade banned.

On Friday the 19th July some members of the Anti-Nazi League decided to attend a concert at the Water Rats Pub in Kings Cross. According to media reports over 30 men set about the Anti-Nazi League members and seriously damaged the pub. Rather than take the opportunity to discuss the future of Ulster, the league decided to make do with the battering they received. The main suspects for the attack appear to be members of Combat 18, so far there have been no arrests. If the Anti-Nazi League and their Republican mates want to turn London into a war zone then so be it, but perhaps in future they had better be more careful of were they chose to spend their Friday nights, otherwise they might end up in Guy's Hospital like the bloke with the sore ribs, cheers.

QUIS SEPARABIT

"LIKE SO MANY RABBITS"

In an article in the "Irish Times" in June, Republican apologist Tim Pat Coogan made a plea to the PIRA murder gangs to lay down the bomb and the gun, and concentrate on the political, (the old "ballot box" syndrome, side of the sic "armed struggle.")

No, Coogan was not going soft in his old age, nor did MI5 manage to compromise him in some sordid way, Coogan was arguing his case on the suggested and unsubstantiated demographic results of the 1991 census.

Coogan's argument is that within a decade or two due to young middle class Protestant migration and higher Roman Catholic birth rates, Protestants will become outnumbered by "Non-Protestants". Hence a United Ireland is there for the Republicans to take, and as such there is no need for violence today. (It seems that only in this circumstance will the PNF accept the democratic tenet of majority rule!).

Coogan goes on to that all Republicans now need to do is to aim for some sort of Federal / Join Authority body to run Ulster, until the Protestants have been out-bred / outnumbered.

This argument Coogan basis on his assessment of the birth rate of Protestants Vs Roman Catholics, arguing that the higher Roman Catholic birth rate and the high level of middle class Protestant migration, Protestants eventually being outnumbered. However for some spurious reason Coogan also argues that the large number of those who gave "no religion" or did not state their religion on the census were in fact mainly Roman Catholic! This is obviously a case of "loading the dice" to give weight to his argument!

Coogan though is not the first to follow this line of argument. John Hume, fellow PNF apologist, first expounded this argument stating that it would be best for Unionists to accept a deal on Ulster now whilst they could get favourable terms due to their numerical superiority, rather than wait until they were "out-bred" by Roman Catholics, and a settlement imposed!

This demographic argument can easily be literally shot to pieces. Firstly in the words of Mark Twain, "There are lies, dammed lies and statistics".

Demographic trends are notoriously difficult to predict with accuracy and ultimately mean little in substantive factual evidence.

Secondly, Protestants have always been in a minority on this island, being outnumbered means little.

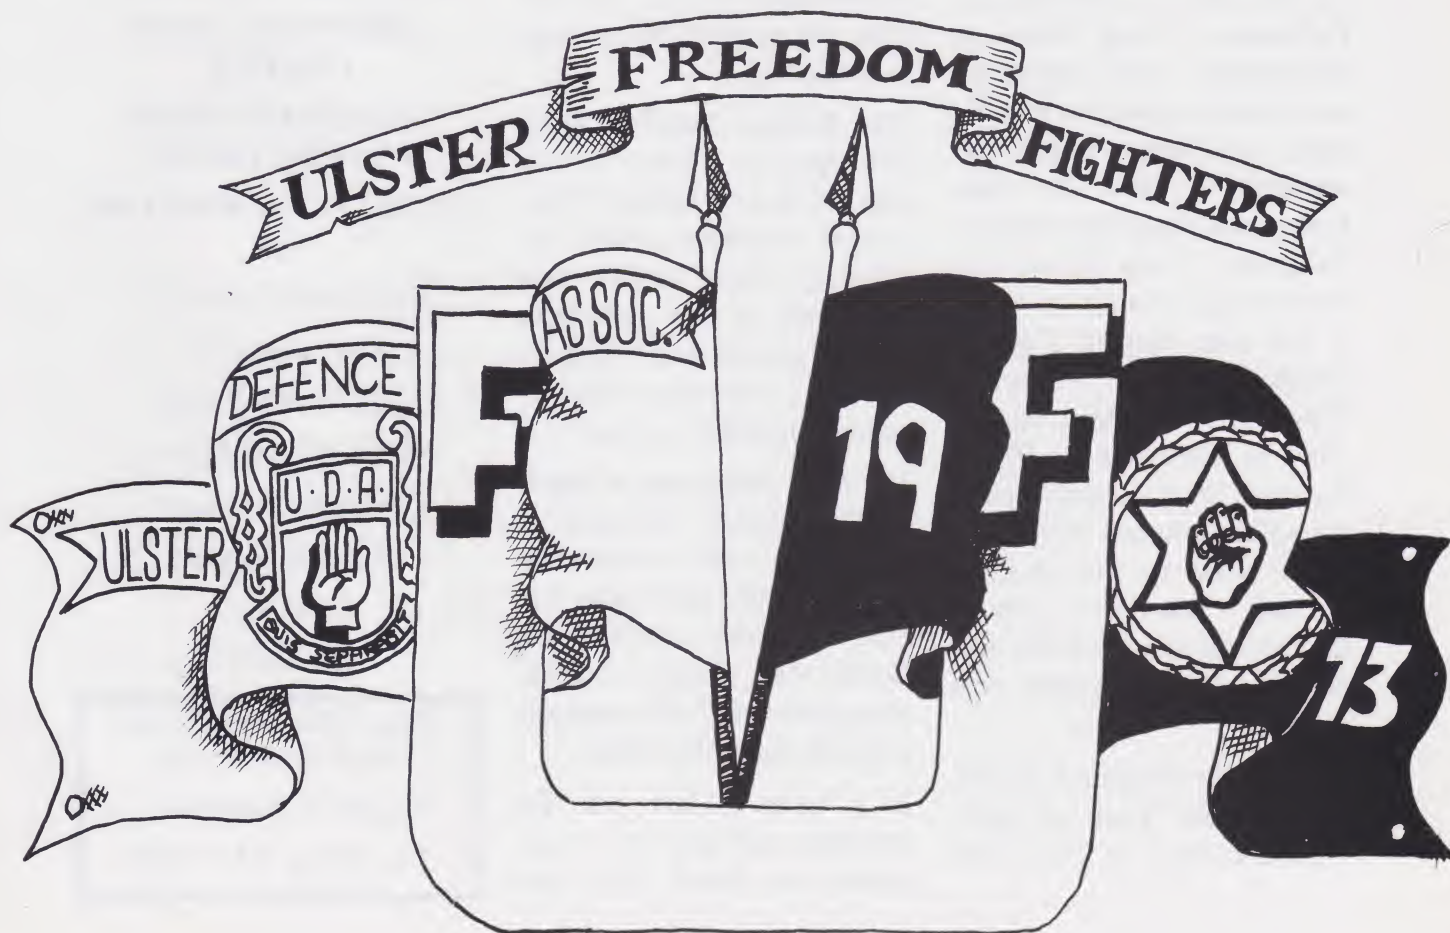

Thirdly, no matter how many "Non-Protestants" the PNF can muster against us, there will always be a core of one million Protestants, who will never, never accept a United Ireland.

If, and it is a big if, we are ever out-bred by Roman Catholics, let no-one, but no-one, we will meekly accept a United Ireland, and the Gaelic, Roman Catholic domination and persecution such an "Irish Utopia" entails. There will always be enough young Protestant men able and willing to pick up a gun or plant a bomb to ensure such an "Irish Utopia" never sees reality. The wishes of Coogan, Hume, and the apologists of the PNF, and their attempts at psychological warfare does not so much alarm Protestants, but instead makes them more determined to resist the Republican nightmare of "their" perceived "united" island. The only tangible results of such PNF propaganda scares perpetrated by apologists such as Coogan and Hume, is to force Protestants to "dig their trenches a little deeper, raise their ramparts, and pass the ammunition out." The mistake the PNF apologists continually make is to ignore or belittle the determination of the Protestant community to resist the imposition of a "united island". In this they ignore our history, our ability to defend ourselves, our ability to absorb great suffering and loss. Because of this we can unequivocally state - "THERE WILL NEVER BE A PEACEFUL UNITED ISLAND WHILST ONE PROTESTANT AND ONE WEAPON REMAINS."

Members of the Somme Memorial LOL 842 from Bristol, England pose for our camera man beside the Somme mural in the village of Dervock, near Ballymoney, County Antrim.

ANOTHER PAPISH PLOT

"Semper Eadem" - "Always The Same" is Rome's motto and we believe it! Cunning, coniving. plotting and planning to undermine the British, Protestant Constitution has always been it's objective and so it manifestly remains.

November 5th is of course the anniversary of a memorable deliverance from one of numerous unsuccessful plot of the Roman Catholic Church against this nation. It was only through the merciful providence of Almighty God that our British parliament was saved from a mighty blow. The rage and malice of the Roman Antichrist was thwarted and this was a mercy that should never be forgotten.

David Alton MP is a very active Roman Catholic who claims that due to the strenuous life style of Members of Parliament - long hours at Westminster with parliamentary sessions going on into the night, constituency surgeries at weekends - there are many broken and dispirited people in Parliament. Using this as a lever he wages a campaign to get a full time Roman Catholic chaplain for the Palace of Westminster. As long ago as 1989 he addressed the British Province Jesuit Assembly making an impassioned plea that a Jesuit priest be provided for the task - and this in spite of the fact that another Order had already provided a part time chaplain.

At the instigation of Mr. Alton on the "Feast of Saints Peter and Paul", in 1993, "Fa-celebrate mass in the Chapel of the House of Commons, and this was followed by a meeting introducing the idea of a retreat. About forty people were in attendance.

This Roman Catholic retreat was open to anyone, of any denomination working in Westminster. Eighteen people enrolled of whom twelve were MPs. One of The retreatants said, "It was the first time in my life that I understood what Ignatian spirituality is about."

The crypt chapel of the Palace of Westminster, dedicated to "Our Lady" was available for the retreatants and mass was available weekly. It is said that Lords, MPs, catering and administrative staff now regularly attend Romish Mass there.

It is quite evident that the energetic activities of such persons as David Alton and Franciscan "Father" Michael Seed, who constantly trawls for potential converts to Romanism among the British aristocracy is part of a great Roman Catholic plot to bring every person in a position of power in the UK under the yoke of Rome.

In the oft omitted words of our national anthem -

"O LORD OUR GOD ARISE,
SCATTER OUR ENEMIES,
AND MAKE THEM FALL;
CONFOUND THEIR POLITICS,
FRUSTRATE THEIR
KNAVISH TRICKS, ON THEE OUR HOPES WE FIX,
GOD SAVE US ALL."

DIRTY DEEDS - DONE DIRT CHEAP !

During the last twenty seven years of the "troubles" many and varied have been the schemes and intrigues used by the RUC and Government agencies against those Loyalist activists who by their actions in defence of their country have come under the notice of these bodies. These may range from promises to overlook minor offences against the law to substantial cash inducements. Of course, really what it amounts to is thirty pieces of silver in reward for betraying your friends and comrades. The following article is an account of a series of interviews conducted between one such person and Special Branch Officers. It is reprinted here in order to discourage any other young Loyalists in the area from taking such a misguided course of action.

Meeting No. 1

I was walking outside Barry's when a man dressed in a blue boilersuit approached me and asked me to follow him. We walked around the sea front and stopped at a metal fence, he leaned over the fence and so did I. He said it was a good idea to meet in a place like this, I said if you say so. He then said come with me, I got into the back of this car and he also got into the back seat and we drove off into the country. They never spoke until I was checked for wires.

Q. Why was I interested in doing this?

A. I do not approve of people using extreme violence.

Q. Why did you not contact the local Special Branch?

A. I stated that I did not know there was a local Special Branch. He then said well R____. Rather than look stupid I said that I didn't trust them. He said what do you mean? I said that I just don't trust them. He said is _____ in toe with the local S.B.? I said that I didn't know, I just don't trust them.

Then the other man with a beard, (mixing grey hair with a beard, early forties), said OK we will have to have a number where we can contact you, so I gave them my home number. They asked what night would suit and I said a Monday night after football practice - 9.10 pm. So they said they would be in touch and left me back to where they had picked me up.

Meeting No. 2

They rang me at 9.15 pm the following Monday night and told me to go out of the house and start walking down the road, so I did. They pulled up and picked me up and headed off. One man said Hello R____ hold up your arms and he checked me for wires. They asked me how long had I known _____ and I said for a few months.

Q. Are you a member of the UDA or UFF?

A. No

Q. Do you expect to be asked to join?

A. Yes

Q. How Sure?

A. Pretty sure.

They said that's good a fresh man from the start we will have to teach you a few tricks but that will come later. They asked me if I knew were _____ was living at present and I gave them the whereabouts. They asked me if I knew any of _____'s friends and I said no we are always on a one to one basis.

They then said right that will do for tonight we will have to make an excuse to work in Coleraine police station, they dropped me off and away they went.

Meeting No. 3

They rang at the usual time, usual pick up, checked for wires. There then followed several questions concerning _____'s personal details.

Q. Well did you hear any names of anyone?

A. No, I haven't

Q. Not even nicknames?

A. Not even any nicknames.

Q. Well does he talk war stories?

A. Once.

Q. What was it about?

A. How Gerald Casey was killed.

Q. How was he killed?

A. I heard it was with an AK47.

OK he said.

Q. Did I know where _____ hid any weapons

A. No, I didn't.

Q. Did you ever hear _____ mention people he would like to kill.

A. No.

Q. Between this bout of questions we were stopped by police outside Liscolman, he put a blanket over my head and pushed me to the floor. The driver must have showed his id as I heard the cop say that's OK go on.

Q. Was I ever in Belfast with _____?

A. Yes.

Q. Was it UDA headquarters?

Meeting No. 4

They rang the following Wednesday and asked me if I could meet them in Portrush on Thursday or Friday. I said Friday around 12.00. They picked me up at the roundabout down from Kelly's. When I got into the car there was a new face, he was introduced as Billy their boss, a grey haired man, combed back, late forties. I was checked for wires and we drove off into the country. There must have been more S.B. about as they kept radio contact as we passed certain road ends. This man Billy did all the questioning

Q. Have you known _____ long?

A. A few months

Q. Do you know he is a terrorist?

A. Is he?

Q. Listen R_____, you know he is, why else would you be here?

A. I don't know that I've never seen him doing terrorist activities.

Q. Do you know anything about a robbery near Dunseverick?

A. No.

R_____, we must establish trust between us, we don't care about robberies or minor crime. We overlook that. Now do you know anything about a robbery near Dunseverick? I replied no. He said you know R_____, your not being very straight here, the right ear and _____ might hear of what your at.

A. If that's what you want to do, then do it.

By this time we were back in Portrush and they dropped me off were they had picked me up and said that they would call me on Monday night.

Meeting No. 5

They rang at the usual time, usual pick up. Their boss was not there. They did not check this time for wires. They said R_____, you have a problem. I said what, they said that the head of your local S.B. was asking why he had not been informed of such actions going on in his area and we had to give your name. It looks as if the whole show has been a total waste of time, what do you want to do? I replied, well you are the experts, if you say it's a waste of time, then it's a waste of time, so they drove me home and as I was getting out, they said to me don't blow your cover because _____ would kill you, they drove off and I never heard from them since.

This transcript was provided to Warrior by the person referred to therein as R_____, and is a factual account of meetings which took place between himself and Special Branch officers over a period of weeks. If you have been approached in a similar manner we suggest that you contact your solicitor immediately and supply them with all the relevant details. Only by doing so will you prevent yourself from being sucked into this life of deception.
